Abstract. This paper delves into the complexities of interfaith dialogue in a globalized world. It discusses the challenges faced by different religious communities in engaging in meaningful conversations while highlighting opportunities for fostering mutual understanding and peace. The article presents case studies from interfaith initiatives in Europe and Asia, providing insights into successful dialogue strategies.

Keywords: Interfaith, Dialogue, Peace, Understanding, Globalization

Introduction

In an era marked by cultural interconnectivity yet religious divisiveness, interfaith dialogue emerges as a crucial tool for promoting peace and understanding. This exploration addresses the multifaceted challenges inherent in facilitating conversations between diverse religious groups, emphasizing the necessity of such dialogues in mitigating conflict. By examining successful interfaith initiatives across Europe and Asia, the article underscores the potential of these dialogues to break down prejudices and build bridges of trust. The study advocates for an increased commitment to interfaith dialogue as a means to achieve lasting harmony in a pluralistic world.
