

Language Preservation in Indigenous Communities

Casey Wilson

PhD

University of Auckland
Auckland 1010, New Zealand

Riley Walker

Dr.

University of São Paulo
Av. Prof. Luciano Gualberto, 71, São Paulo - SP, 05508-010, Brazil

Jesse Clark

Prof.

University of Cape Town
Rondebosch, Cape Town, 7700, South Africa

Abstract. This article examines efforts to preserve languages in indigenous communities, focusing on strategies and challenges faced in language revitalization. The study highlights successful initiatives and the role of community engagement in sustaining linguistic heritage. The findings emphasize the importance of preserving linguistic diversity and cultural identity in the face of globalization.

Keywords: language preservation, indigenous communities, language revitalization, linguistic diversity, cultural identity

Introduction

Language preservation is a critical issue for many indigenous communities facing the threat of language extinction. This study explores the strategies and challenges involved in revitalizing indigenous languages, highlighting successful initiatives and the role of community involvement. By examining various case studies, the research underscores the importance of preserving linguistic diversity and cultural identity.

This is a preliminary version. To read the full version of the article, please purchase a subscription.

References

1. Айбазова М.Ю., Айбазова А.К., Карасова А.А.// Вестник Омского государственного педагогического университета. Гуманитарные исследования. - Омск. -2021. -№ 2 (31). С.143-147.